HELD FOR EXAMINATION NEXT WEDNES. DAY IN $5,000 BAIL.

HE REFUSES TO PLEAD GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY TO THE CHARGE THAT HE OFFERED $25,000 TO F. G. ISLES TO BE USED TO PRE-VENT THE GRAND JURY FROM FINDING INDICTMENTS FOR

CONSPIRACY AGAINST MESSES PHILIPS

William Hepburn, who is known among his next Wednesday in $5,000 bail. He refused to close their identity. Intelligent citizens say that plead either guilty or not guilty to the charge March 15, at the Sinclair House, Manhattan, he offered Frederick G. Isles $25,000 if the latter would prevent the March Grand Jury, of which Isles was secretary, from finding indictments for conspiracy against Police Commissioner William E. Philips and Theodore B. Willis, ex-City Works Commissioner of Brooklyn.

It was a little before noon yesterday when word was received at the District-Attorney's office that Hepburn had been arrested and was on his way. Jeremiah Mahoney, one of the District-Attorney's detectives, had gone to Manhattan, and found Hepburn at Park Place and Church-st., and had placed him under arrest,

David M. Welch, who is attorney for both Hepburn and Charles M. Winant, reached the District-Attorney's office before Hepburn. A few minutes later Hepburn and Mahoney walked up the steps. Hepburn is a man somewhat under the medium height and heavily set. He has deep-set eyes and bushy eyebrows, an arched nose, firm mouth and somewhat heavy jaw. His mouth looks as if it had lost the art of smiling. He was dressed in a suit of black cloth. There was no diamend stud in his shirtfront yesterday, its only ornament being a modest stud of white composition.

HEPBURN TO THE RAIL.

When his name was called Hepburn aros slowly and moved to the rail. He stood beside District-Attorney Marean, and while his face expressed absolutely no emotion of any kind, his small eyes ran up and down the prosecuting officer as if trying to read him. Mr. Welch stood beside Hepburn and watched him closely. checking him at one time when he started to answer a question. His lawyer objected to the proceeding and moved for a dismissal on these

First-That the crime of bribery, if attempted at all, was committed in the county of New-York, and the court had no jurisdiction.

Second-That if Hepburn had aided and abetted Winant, it was done in New-York County, and the court had no jurisdiction.

Third-That the warrant was returnable only in the county in which the alleged crime was committed. Fourth—That the court had no jurisdiction over the person of the defendant Hepburn for the Magistrate Bristow denied the motion. The prisoner was requested to plead, and Mr. Welch replied that while he and his client meant no offence to the Court, his client must refuse to plead, and to all other proceedings would stand mute. When the Magistrate, as is usual, referred to the right of the prisoner to have counsel, Mr. Welch repeated: "We stand mute."

The examination was set for April 27, at 10 a. m. Jacques Kahn, of No. 50 East Eightythird-st., Manhattan, was surety on the $5,000 bond. He is a manufacturer of looking-glasses at No. 27 Bleecker-st. He gave as security Nos. 310 and 312 West One-hundred-and-thirtyseventh-st., Manhattan, at one of which numbers Hepburn lives. The signature of Hepburn to the bond had what seemed to be the same angular penmanship that appeared on some of the notes sent to Henry D. Ohlsen, the Grand Juryman, who was discovered shot soon after the Grand Jury had found the indictments against nine city officials.

M. J. DADY WAS PRESENT.

Much comment was made on the fact yesterday that Michael J. Dady was present at the preliminary arraignment of Hepburn. When asked what he was there for, he replied: "I want to get a look at this man for whom I was political associates as the "Colonel," was ar- taken to be a ringer. As long as Mayor Van Wyck permits William E. Philips to remain in the posttion in which he holds the reins on the member of the police force, well-informed people say that little can be hoped from the police. The check to those who are aiding Philips to save his cousin, Hepburn, and his private secretary, Winant, may possibly be found in the Kings picious manner in which William Hepburn eyed Josiah T. Marean in court yesterday reflects a suspicion that is entertained by others. It is the suspicion that District-Attorney Marean cannot be called off from prosecuting Hepburn and Winant in earnest. It may be recalled that Mr. Marean was until recent years a Republican, that he is a man whose associations in club life and in society have not kept him in sympathetic touch with the methods of certain politicians. and that he was put on the Kings County Democratic ticket as a sop to catch the votes of the decent element. He is therefore an unknown quantity with the politicians. Tammany Hall may desire very much to save

William Hepburn, a man who knows many ugly secrets against the organization. Yet it is a serious question whether this powerful organ-After being closeted for a few minutes with | ization is in a position to call off Mr Marcan the District-Attorney, Hepburn and the other from his plain duty, especially as such calling on will have to be done through Kings County Democrats whose regard is not strong just at Magistrate Bristow, who was on the bench, to present either for Tammany Hall or the Willis

> This may explain why "Bill" Hephurn is so anxious to have the jurisdiction of his alleged crime transferred from Kings to New-York County. In New-York County the prosecution would depend upon the activity of Colonel Asa Bird Gardiner, the man who shouted "To hell with reform!" and who might therefore have no strong desire to reform "Colonel Bill" Hep-

CONVINCED THAT THEY ARE RIGHT

Mr. Marean and his assistant, John F. Clarke. are convinced that they are right in the question of jurisdiction. They drew the affidavit of Isles in the most cautious manner and with law books and precedents at hand. They rely on Title No. 2, Section No. 29, of the Criminal Code, which reads: "A person concerned in the commission of a crime, whether he directly commits the act constituting the offence or aids and abets in its commission, and whether present or abcent, and a person who directly or indirectly counsels, commands, induces or procures another to commit a crime, is a principal."

"You will notice that it says 'whether present or absent," said Mr. Clarke to a Tribune reporter yesterday. "It wouldn't have mattered if Hepburn had been in California, the authorities of this county would have had jurisdiction of the offence. There is nothing in their contention. There might have been something in it if Winant had committed the crime of which he is charged entirely in New-York Counto Then there might have been a question but the fact is that according to Isles's confession Winant first approached him on the subject of bribery in Kings County, and arranged for the meeting in New-York County. Winant's alleged crime was thus clearly in Kings County, and that was the crime he was aided and abet-

"Have you any evidence that connects Willis and Philips with the attempt at bribery?"

"No. I know nobody in the case besides Isles, Winant and Hepburn."

Captain Reynolds told a Tribune reporter on Monday that he had the testimony of respectable people proving beyond a doubt that Henry D Chisen committed suicide. Captain Reynolds refused to disclose what he had. "I sm letting others do the talking," was all he would say.

Chief McCullagh said yesterday that Captain McCusky and his men had investigated all the circumstances rurrounding the death of Ohisen and had submitted the substance of a long report that had been prepared. "From the substance of the report that has been submitted to me," said the Chief, "and from what I know myself about the case, I believe Ohisen committed suicide. Everything points to that."

Chief McCullagh said that the report would not be made public, as it was a private document, prepared at his request.

CRESPO'S DEATH CONFIRMED.

THE EX-PRESIDENT OF VENEZUELA KILLED IN BATTLE WITH IN-SURGENTS.

Washington, April 19.-The State Department received information this afterneon from Minister Loomis, at Caracas, Venezuela, that ex-President Crespo was killed while battling with insurgents.

General Joaquin Crespo was a native of Venezuela, and was born about the year 1845. In 1871 and 1879 he fought in the revolutions as a Federalis; and ended the Blanco revolution by the fight of and ended the Blanco revolution by the light of El Zamuro; in 1881 he succeeded Blanco as Presi-dent. He resigned in 1896, and two years later him-self started an insurrection against President Paul, but was unsuccessful. He came to New-York, and did not return to Venezuela till 1892. When he first organized the rebellion in the western provinces he was chief of staff to President Palaclo. He first declared the western provinces independent, and then, marching on Caracas, the capital, seized

HARTFORD BRIDGE CASE ARGUED.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT ASKED TO PASS ON THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF A CONNECTICUT LAW.

Washington, April 19.-The somewhat famous Hartford bridge case was argued in the United States Supreme Court to-day. The case involves the constitutionality of the act of the Connecticut Legislature of 1805, which made the towns of Hartford, East Hartford, Glastonbury, Manchester and South Windsor responsible for the maintenance of this bridge. The bridge was formerly owned by a private corporation, and was then by act of the Legislature purchased and made a free highway, the State to bear the expenses of maintenance. In 1895 the Legislature passed an act imposing the maintenance of the bridge on the five towns especipliy interested and appointing a commission posed of a Selectman from each of the towns for the posed of a Selectman from each of the towns for the supervision of the bridge. This act the towns attack, Glastonbury being the representative in this case. They compain that the law violates the Federal Constitution in that it deprives citizens of property without due process of law. The State, on the contrary, contends that no Federal question is involved. The State asserts that in the first place the towns are not deprived of any property, but it contends that if they were the act would not be in violation of the Constitution, because it deals simply with the public duty of a public corporation.

The case comes to the United States Supreme Court on a writ of error from the Supreme Court of Connecticut. John R. Buck and L. E. Stanton represent the towns, and Lewis Sperry the State of Connecticut in the presentation of the case.

THE ARMY AND THE NAVY.

KEEP POLITICIANS OUT OF THE ARMY From The St. Louis Republic.

From The St. Louis Republic.

Luring the first two years of the Civil War many regiments and not a few brigades were rendered worthless on the Northern side—the Southerners suffered some, but not to the same extent—by the noxious prevalence of officers whose training and motives were purely political. Their active tongues and weak hearts, their faces of brass and cornstalk backbones cost more money, delay and general foolishness than history can ever count.

THE COLORED REGULARS ARE FIGHTERS. From The Boston Journal.

The colored regulars who have been sent to Key West deserve a more cordial reception than they have had. They are seasoned and gallant fighters, and better patriots by far than the supersensitive Caucasians who show an antipathy to them.

ATTITUDE OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

From The Albany Argus.

The National Guard in the various States has shown a commendable willingness to waive the question of the Fresident's jurisdiction and to go utside the country in order to assist in the impending war in Cuba, but a greater difficulty arose by reason of the unwise insistence of certain Regular Army officials that the Guardsmen should go not in their present organized capacities, but as individual volunteers, to be assigned to companies promiscuously, as might be desired. DISAPPEARANCE OF THE VETERANS.

From The Chicago Tribune.

From The Chicago Tribune.

Although the Nation emerged from the Rebellion with an Army of disciplined veterans—counting those on both sides—numbering not less than a million men, and as efficient as those constituting the regular armies of the Old World, it was speedly dispersed among the common people, almost immediately resuming the vocations of civil life. It is a curious fact that, although our population has more than doubled since that time, and our interests to be protected, both at home and abroad, have increased in still larger ratio, there has been no corresponding increase in the Regular Army, upon which the country must depend for defence in any sudden emergency. udden emergency. From The Worcester Spy.

The steamships, like the St. Paul, the St. Louis, the New York, the Paris, the El Norte, the El Sud, etc., which are to be converted into cruisers are admirable boats, and it is doubted if the merchant marine of any other nation can match them in efficiency for the purposes to which they are to be devoted. The Naval Board has the utmost confidence in the boats that it has bought, save one. A VAST MILITARY FORCE NOT NEEDED.

From The Providence Journal.

From The Providence Journal.

The bringing of Spain to terms ought to be achieved without an army of anything like 440,000 men, which is the number which will be enrolled in the United States service if the regulars and 400,000 volunteers are prepared for the apparently imminent struggle. On the whole, it may be inadvisable to errange for such a force even in skeleton. The alleged enemy is not capable of matching any such body of soldiery.

THE LACK OF NAVAL OFFICERS. From The Nashville American.

In the present war emergency it has been discovered that the new Navy is short of officers. We had sufficient money with which to buy new ships, but the men to command them are not easy to procure. Hundreds of young men have been educated at the Annapolis Academy, but after graduating at the Annapolis Academy, but after graduating they drifted into private life because there was no place for them in the Navy. The one conspicuous person in the whole affair to whom we can point with honest pride is the Frestdent. He has borne himself throughout in a manner worthy of his great station. For this we must be sincerely thankful. He has been moderate, self-restrained, courteous, rational. He has, in fact, haved like a statesman and a gentleman, and the Chief Magistrate of a great people; and now that our affairs are passing into his hands peculiarly we feel sure our reputation will cease to suffer as it has been suffering.

THE WELL-KNOWN WRITER EXPIRES FROM A LIVER COMPLAINT AT ROOSEVELT HOSPITAL.

George Parsons Lathrop, the well-known writer, died at 10 a.m., yesterday, at Roosevelt Hospital, from a liver complaint. He had been ill at the hospital since Saturday. Mrs. Lathrop was with

George Parsons Lathrop was born in the Sandwich Islands about forty-seven years ago. At that time his father was a United States Consul there. After he had finished his studies at Dresden and at the law school of Columbia University, he went abroad, and in 1871 married Miss Rose Hawthorne, who was a daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne. For many years he lived in the "Wayside," a famous old house at Concord, where Hawthorne "Our Old Home" and "The Tanglewood Tales." After selling his rural home, he came to this city life he had been not only a writer of stories, a biographer and a critical writer on literature and the fine arts, but a newspaper writer and editor, having been at one time editor-in-chief of "The Boston Courier" and the assistant editor of "The

He began his career as a poet with a volume of poems called "Rose and Roof Tree," and later he brought out another volume of poems, entitled "Keenan's Charge." Some of the books which came from his pen were: "Study of Hawthorne, "Somebody Else," "The Echo of Passion," which ppeared in serial form in "The Atlantic" in 1881; "Newport," published in 1884; "In the Distance," a novel, "Spanish Vistas," a book containing sketches of travel, and "True," a novel about humble life

Mr. Lathrop was not of the recluse order. The credit of organizing the Copyright League, which now numbers among its members hundreds of wellknown authors and newspaper men, was due largely to Mr. Lathrop.

While he was helping to perfect the League, he was instrumental in drawing up an international House of Representatives by Congressman Dorshelmer, and a later bill on the same s which was introduced in the Senate by Senator Hawley Lathrop's wife is well-known for t her verses, and for the articles about her fathe which she has written. According to reports published early in October, 1896, she and her husband had not been living together for about a year. At that time it was learned that she had been serving as an assistant to the attendants in the chronic wards of the New-York Cancer Hospital, and has since been active as a nurse among cancer patients on the East Side.

Mr. Lathrop was a member of the Players', Authors' and Reform clubs, the Sons of the Revolution and the Dunlop Society.

CAPTAIN THOMAS H. MORTON.

Captain Thomas H. Morton, who died yesterday morning at the home of his son, No. 230 Tompkins ave., Brooklyn, was born in this city in November. In 1862 he married Elisabeth Bliss, of Springfield, Mass. Soon after his marriage he was car tain of the clipper ship Swallow, and Peking, China, when that port was first op and was at foreigners. He and his wife were among the first

Captain Morton was a naval officer, serving under Farragut at New-Orleans. He was afterward captain of one of the Pacific Mail steamers, and subsequently had charge of the works of the Panama Canal, at Colon After the failure of the Panama Canal scheme, Captain Morton went to Nicaragua. He was well known in shipping circles. In his last sickness he was extremely desirous of recovery, so that he might be able to light against the Spanish. His death was due to Bright a disease.

The funeral will be this evening at 8 o'clock at the house, and will probably be conducted by the Rev. St. Clair Hester, of St. George's, because the Rev. Dr. A. Morrison, of St. Matthew's, which church the captain attended, is at present out of the city.

Captain Morion's wife died several years ago. He leaves a son, Robert E. Morton.

GENERAL HUGH J. CAMPBELL.

St. Paul. April 19.-General Hugh J. Campbell, the best known man in South Dakota, died at Sloux Falls, in that State, to-day, from pneumonia.
